Portfolio Managers Market Commentary

Harry joined Fairstone in August of 2021 from Brown Shipley where he worked as a portfolio manager and collectives analyst with a focus on closed-ended vehicles.

Harry holds the CISI Chartered Wealth Manager qualification.

Through May, global equity markets rebounded strongly, buoyed by easing trade tensions and improving consumer sentiment. Developed market stocks outperformed their emerging market counterparts, led by gains from U.S. markets, and from the U.S. technology sector in particular, with the Nasdaq index gaining 8.1%, in GBP.

U.S. trade negotiations continued between the White House and other key global governments, with significant progress made between the U.S and the E.U., while a mid-month trade truce between the U.S. and China helped fuel gains across risk assets.

While trade tariffs remain the focal point of President Trump's economic agenda, early sightings of his budget reconciliation bill point to new tax and regulatory changes that will help boost the U.S. domestic business landscape – a development that proved positive for small cap stocks through the month.

Elsewhere, both European and U.K. equities posted gains, with upward earnings revisions helping underpin confidence in the European equity market. Within the U.K., GDP data surprised to the upside, while announcements of trade deals with India and the U.S. further added to optimism. However, inflation in the region remains stubbornly high, and fears are mounting over government borrowing levels.

Across bond markets, the picture was more challenging, as concerns over fiscal deficits in both the U.S. and U.K. pushed up long-dated yields, weighing heavily on government bond prices. Improving trade tensions helped buoy returns from credit markets, with the global high yield index benefitting from a brighter growth outlook and eking out a gain of 1.6%, however, broad weakness in government bonds led the global aggregate index to close the month down 0.5%.

Commodity markets also struggled. Gold was especially weak through the period, falling 0.9%, as investors capitalised on falling recessionary fears by shifting capital way from defensive assets. Other alternative asset classes, notably property and infrastructure, benefitted from the improving appetite, posting gains.

Looking ahead, unpredictable trade policies, ongoing inflationary pressures, and divergent fiscal responses are expected to sustain market volatility. Investors are advised to focus on diversification across geographies and asset classes while maintaining flexibility to adapt to evolving conditions.

Fund In Focus

Alliance Witan Trust

This strategy is an investment trust, managed by Willis Towers Watson (WTW) and it a multi-manager approach with 11 elite fund managers, each limited to a small selection (20, 40 for Emerging Markets mandates) of high-conviction stocks to maximise returns while balancing risk. The focus of the strategy is stock specific exposure, however WTW actively manages these allocations across global sectors and geographies to maintain diversification. The investment committee, led by WTW's Craig Baker can therefore act as a strong Core element of our equity allocation, providing diversification through a range of experienced and specialist fund managers.
